MINUTE ENTRY

The Court received Respondent/Father's Motion for Reconsideration. Specifically, the Motion requests reconsideration of the Court's parenting time schedule, findings regarding Father's participation in the Parenting Class, and findings related to domestic violence.

The Motion correctly identified an error in the Court's ruling in that Father completed the Parent Education Class on November 5, 2011 and filed his certificate of completion on November 8, 2011. The Paternity Judgment will be corrected on page 9 to conform to the finding on page 2.

The remainder of Respondent's Motion is denied.

The Court entered a finding of domestic violence perpetrated by Father against Petitioner/Mother. The Court found that Father engaged in a pattern of behavior to control Mother. Specifically, the Court found that Mother credibly testified that Father monitored where she was at various times and controlled her behavior by denying her access to money, affirmation, and attention. Father alleged in his Motion for Reconsideration that the Court failed to consider that Mother operated her own business. To the contrary, the Court found that despite Mother's employment, Father controlled the finances and denied her access to money. In his Motion for Reconsideration, Father alleged that the Court's findings do not "fit" the domestic violence programs ordered. To clarify, Father is ordered to complete a program for perpetrators of domestic violence and file a certificate of completion. Father should attempt to find a program for non-violent offenders. For Chrysalis, Father may contact Amy Spriggs 602-955-9059 for a treatment program for non-violent perpetrators. As noted by Father, the Court further found that Mother was particularly reactive to Father's conduct. For joint legal custody, the Court finds that Father must gain a better understanding of the harmful effect of certain actions and conduct. Moreover, as noted in the Order, Mother would also benefit from classes for victims of domestic violence.

Due to clerical error,

IT IS ORDERED, nunc pro tunc, amending page 7, #9, of the Minute Entry dated April 30, 2012 with a file date of May 8, 2012, to reflect the following:

THE COURT FINDS that the domestic relations education provisions of A.R.S. §25-352 have been satisfied, in place and instead of Father has not complied with this requirement. The remainder of the minute entry shall remain as stated.
